

THE FOOD LIBRARY COPYRIGHT STATEMENT

We are passionate about books and want them to be read, used, respected and loved. We believe that the authors that create them should be acknowledged and celebrated. Indeed we aim for some of the authors to join us for special Food Library events inspired by their books.

The Food Library collection has been gathered by Michael Mayhew & Laura Elliott and we aim to share it with members so sustainable and environmentally food can be grown and so that recipes can be cooked and eaten.

To this end, we acknowledge that members will want to make use of sections from the various reference books and ask that these guidelines are followed.

Copying from Food Library Books

Books in The Food Library collection are treated by The Food Library under 'fair usage' Copyright guidance. Members of The Food Library may photograph or re-write single recipes or educational texts from books provided that they are doing so for their own personal and non-commercial use. By 'fair usage' we mean that any recipes or text copied should not represent more than 5% of a complete book, or exceed more than one chapter of a book.

Our Ideas

©The Food Library 2020. The Food Library name, logo, website and all associated text, images and products are created and owned by Michael Mayhew & Laura Elliott.